WHEN I WAS 20

By W. J. DEADLY.

Foreman, Texas Company

When I was 20 I was laying brick on a tobacco warehouse in Richmond, Virginia, after a lapse of time was known as Libby prison during the civil war. That was only 60 years ago. So you see I am now 80 years young.

4 American Celebrities Tell What They'd Like to be Thankful For

BY WILL ROGERS

SUPPOSE I ought to have a lot of things to be thankful for besides turkey with the wife and kids, but I ain't satisfied.

Of course I'm having a lot of fun making two-reel comedies, but I hanker to show my Art and get fan letters from flappers like they write to Valentine and Lew Cody and those other handsome devils.

I ain't got such a bad fixer—that's how I got by in the Follies—but I wish I had lived to get into DeMille's problem plays.

A sixth victim of the accident is in Hahnemann hospital in a critical condition.

The dead:

JAMES McGEE, 37.

HARRY GRAHAM, 32.

JOSEPH PIERSOHN.

Two unidentified women.

Catherine Graham is in Hahnemann hospital where she is reported to be dying.

Policeman Kennedy witnessed the plunge of the machine. The officer rushed to the next junction roundhouse in an effort to stop a train which he knew was due.

Officers Powerless

As Kennedy ran, he attracted three other policemen and sent them to the scene. The three men stood looking at the wreck just as the train roared through the subway.

The locomotive struck the wrecked automobile with such force the crash was heard for several blocks.

Firemen arrived with ladders. Police and firemen raced down the ladders and the rescue work began.

Four of the occupants of the automobile were found pinned beneath the wreckage despite the terrific force of the collision. The other two victims were buried several feet deep in the wreckage.

Signal Set Too Late

The victims of the accident had attended a party and McGee was taking the three men and two young women to their homes.

After the crash it was learned that Policeman Kennedy had reached the roundhouse just before the locomotive plunged into the car. A signal was set to stop the train after the freight had passed by the warning light.

Running at High Speed

The Kansas City special on the Southern was running at high speed when the accident occurred. The engine plowed into the three rear coaches of the Coast Line train without warning. Passengers were hurled from their berths. screams of women and frightened men added to the confusion.

The engine of the Southern was damaged by the impact and Engineer Evans trapped in his cab was crushed to death.

Claim Improper Signals

Advises from railroad officials at Nahant said that the Coast Line train was at a standstill preparing to back into the Y, at the station when the Southern train, an extra from Jacksonville to Kansas City, crashed into it.

The cause of the accident has not been determined. Some railroad officials believe it might have been due to improper signals of the special train.

The Pullmans of the Coast Line train were of steel and none collapsed.

The rear end of the observation car was jammed in. None of the cars overturned.

Crashes Through Ventilator Into Railway Tunnel in Path of Speeding Locomotive

Holland Dairies All dairies were found in a poor sanitary condition and several persons to sell milk were re-ruled.

The well of one Holland Dairy was about 18 ft. deep, located in a poorly drained cow lot and within 15 ft. of and on lower ground than an unsanitary surface toilet. Mosquitoes were found breeding profusely in the well, the water of which was pumped to the milk house. Fleas were pumped to the milk house. Fleas were not sterilized, but were washed in water cold enough to put the hand in. The waste from the milk room was carried off to an open ditch, which ran within four feet of the well of the other Holland Dairy, and in times of wet weather, they were told, overflowed into it. Both wells were thin-skinned covered. The family did not use the water, but washed all bottles and containers in it, without sterilization.

"The first thing they called for," said the old lady, "was tooth powder and paste, and the next was something to read. A bundle of their magazines, the Naval Weekly, and a few books they had spread out on the beach drying in the sun, and taking turns reading them."

The modern naval man is a studious sort, and as for cleanliness, well, he believes in that as a paramount asset in life. The ship's library is small but compact on the destroyers, and on larger ships is very extensive. From the heavier mechanics of calculus and Euclid, the subjects range through sciences, arts and military laws and requirements. Very liberal works on popular government also find high place with the naval men.

CLAIM TYPHOID SOURCE TRACED

Prize for the city health department for the work it has been doing under the present administration was voiced last night by Dr. M. F. Bleddoe. Dr. Bleddoe, however, pointed out that in order to eradicate typhoid infection entirely from Jefferson county it would be necessary for the forces of the city, county and state to co-operate in eradicating the infection.

City health officers are empowered to keep milk out of Port Arthur that has not been given a clean bill of health, but have no authority to enforce their inspections into the territory outside the city limits.

State Official's Report

The letter filed with the state health officer by the investigators working the Port Arthur situation follows:

Dr. W. H. Beasley,

State Health Officer,

Austin, Texas.

Dear Sir:

"According to instructions received from your office, we proceeded to Port Arthur, to investigate the occurrence of typhoid fever in and around that place and hereby submit the following report:

"There has been more or less typhoid here for the past several years. The history of twenty-three cases were taken, of which fifteen were known definitely, to obtain their milk from one or other of two dairies, known as the 'Holland Dairies,' and which were located side by side. Of the remaining eight cases, four were taken sick immediately upon returning from visits of at least two weeks duration. Two of the remaining four cases did not know where their milk came from, leaving only two cases definitely known that could not be traced to the Holland Dairies.

"It was impossible to trace any one to fruit, vegetables, or ice cream. Thus being the case, we are spared approximately half of the hundred dairies, supplying Port Arthur, pledges of which they are forced to their, with milk, and especially the disease, often at a loss.

THIS NEW BRAIN AT OLD TRICKS

Veteran Gangster's Remedy on Noodle Short

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—That operation on Bill Irwin's brain may not have been as successful as it was hoped, for police say Bill has been doing bad things recently.

Irwin, 45, who was the subject of solicitude on the part of surgeons when he was recently confined in Marietta, the surgeon sliced Bill's skull open, tickled with the works,atched up his noggin, and discharged him as cured.

Never again, it was thought, would Bill have an impulse out of the ordinary's desire to steal, say, or to crack another man on the head with an iron pipe. Bill was to see things the right way, henceforward.

But Bill went on the war path, however, say. If the truth must be known, the police never do get much faith in these new fangled ways of changing men.

Bill heard that his old brother, Al, had been arrested and charged with theft of an automobile. Someone told Bill that Michael Byrne, a neighbor, had been with Alister when the police had fled, and that the police Bill went after Mike Byrne. He found him in Dan McAuley's garage, Hawtree Creek road and Rockaway boulevard. Mike's head met a piece of iron pipe. Bill told the police Mike had been hit with Alister when he was temporarily deranged by hardship and disappointment at finding no welcome.

It must have been quite a tap, though. Anyway, Bill carried Mike to St. Mary's hospital, Jamaica. After a bit of dressing was put on Mike's head he was arrested; so was Bill and Dan McAuley.

BONUS IS COMING, ROBINSON ASSERTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Should anyone to exhibit a farm more elongated than the one he owns, it is twelve miles long and only 55 feet wide and has been used for farming purpose for more than seventy years.

Before the Civil War the strip was the Wabash & Erie canal right of way. When the canal was abandoned about the time of the war, the land was converted for farming. Not long ago the entire property was bid for sale in payment of taxes, and it was bought it in.

BRITISH GUZZLING MEDICINE HE SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Great Britain is becoming a medicine-guzzling nation according to Harry Roberts, a well known medical writer, who says that fully 90 per cent of the British people are taking medicines.

In the world today, according to Roberts, at least twice as much medicine is drunk as 10 years ago. He says it is one piece of ritual observed by the whole human race.

ENGLISH "THREE BALL" BUSINESS IS SLACK

LONDON, Nov. 29.—It's a hard world and it's hard on the pawnbroker, say the hard "uncles" who complain that trade in the U.K. is the worst it has ever been.

"Half the pawnbrokers shops in existence before the war are now closed," one principal said study at the meeting of the Pawnbrokers' association.

The pawn merchants are becoming bankrupt at the number of forfeited handbills, supplies of which they are forced to their, with milk, and especially the disease, often at a loss.

IRISH REBEL HANGED, 7 OTHERS WAIT DEATH

DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—The first civil execution under the Free State took place at Mount Joy prison today when William Davies, a military deserter, was hanged for the murder of Detective Fitzgerald. Seven other desperadoes are awaiting execution.

142 TYPHOID CASES TRACED TO LAKE WATER

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Health authorities took samples of water from the Lake Michigan waterfront Wednesday in an effort to locate the source of a serious outbreak of typhoid fever among residents of the south side of the city.

Nineteen new cases were reported Wednesday, bringing the total to 142 within the last ten days.

WIFE WRECKS HOME AS MATE SENDS CASH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—Coming from Italy with her baby, she left her husband the infant and entered a rooming house. Mrs. Maria Puglisi arrived in Albany late last night to find her home broken.

Hiltsivated and practically penniless, the young woman went into the basement, found an ax, broke down the door and smashed household furniture valued at $1,500, and while represented her couple's savings in many years.

Neighbor called the police, and Marshal John Gavinoovich arrested Mike.

Today Superior Judge James G. Quinn, in Oakland, sent Mrs. Puglisi to Napa Insane asylum. She is temporarily deranged by hardship and disappointment at finding no welcome.

White Mrs. Puglisi was smashing up the home her husband was at the Albany postoffice sending $500, the last of their money, to his wife, whom he believed still in Italy.

FREE STATE LOAN PROSPECTS BRIGHT

DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—Ernest Blythe minister of finance of the Irish Free State, in a statement today said the response to the new national loan thus far had exceeded his most sanguine expectations. The bishops, the energy and religious orders of all denominations, Mr. Blythe asserted, are investing their funds in the loan.

"Congress can and will reduce taxes and pass a compensation bill, long overdue," said Senator Robinson. "In any event legislation for disabled veterans, adequate hospitalization and compensation must be provided, whatever else is done."

YOUTH RUSHING TO HOLLYWOOD

Annual Legion of Stricken Movie Fans Begins

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—The fall rush to Hollywood is on at the rate of more than 100 a week.

Presently, the movies are swamped with boys and girls who have left the farm or deserted their city homes to become movie stars. Hollywood is considerably perturbed over this in fact and the Chamber of Commerce plans to act as "daddy" for the hundreds of movie-struck youngsters who have journeyed west to find fame in the pictures. Conditions are particularly acute at this time, with several of the large studios closed down.

"Most of these young people arrive with practically no money," claim the officials declared. "They think that all they have to do is to announce they are ready to become stars."

Hereafter, young girls who believe they are potential Mary Pickfords or Norma Talmidges will be asked to write to the chamber before making the trip. The chamber will then warn them of the hardships and disappointments that attend ambitions of would-be movie stars.

As an example of the way they come: A little girl arrived in Hollywood not long ago, with her hair curled like Mary Pickford's. She had left the home folk with little money and was destitute. They had sent her all the money they could and she applied to the Chamber of Commerce for aid.

All she had to bolster her ambition was a clipping from the home newspaper praising her for her acting in an amateur theatrical performance. The paper said she was a "Second Mary Pickford."

And she was only one of the many who experience the heartaches, disappointments of Hollywood—and sometimes worse.

HOUSTON MERCHANT FALLS DEAD ON TRAIN

HOUSTON, Nov. 29.—Pat C. Fowley, widely known Houston dry goods merchant, died suddenly of heart trouble while en route here from San Antonio yesterday.

Fowley was one of the founders of

Fowley Brothers Dry Goods company

and in recent years headed Pat C. Fowley Shoe company.

All she had to bolster her ambition was a clipping from the home newspaper praising her for her acting in an amateur theatrical performance.

TOM TOM FOR TODAY

CHILDREN'S CHILDREN ARE THE CROWN OF OLD MEN; AND THE GLORY OF CHILDREN ARE THEIR FATHERS.—PROV. 17:6.

AND THE
BANKERS OF AMERICA

MARTIN B. MADDEN AS A MOLLIFIER

Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois is one of the most powerful leaders of the lower house and chairman of its ways and means committee. Madden is a man of vision. He has prepared a bill to give Henry Ford the Muscle Shoals plant and this bill calls for the erection of a new power building to replace the Gorges plant that was turned over to the Alabama Light and Power company by Secretary John W. Weeks.

And yet Harding talks like a practical man, and fails to be effective in aiding the farmer. His plan to be effective in aiding the farmer must be based upon the fundamental principles of self-help and co-operation on the part of the farmers themselves, is his latest. No legislation, however sound and wise, declares this Alabama financier, can of itself produce a crop nor can it control prices in the world market.

Moreover, he says the economic law of supply and demand is inexorable for if production exceeds consumptive requirements prices will decline. To restore a proper balance, he is positive that either production must be curtailed or means must be found to increase consumption.

W. P. G. Harding was an appointee of Woodrow Wilson. He served eight years. He had the backing of the bankers of America. Politicians demanded a scapegoat. Warren G. Harding, president of the United States, while he had great admiration for his namesake, threw him to the political wolves who demanded blood, and named an Ohio man as governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

And yet W. P. G. Harding was not the author of the deflation policy of the board. That policy was suggested and then ordered by David F. Houston, secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, and Houston had the backing of the democratic administration.

Pullman built a car three years ago for the western wizard and the poisonous publicity agents got next to the story only last week. Then they pulled it for all it was worth.

DAY OF THANKS

THANKSGIVING DAY originated as a time of thanks for plentiful harvests which made it certain that the early settlers of America would be able to endure the winter without starving.

Thanksgiving has gradually come to mean much more. It is the time of thanks for all such blessings as good crops, prosperity, health, peace, children, happy homes. In short, it is the one time of the year when the whole nation, regardless of creed or sect, unites in recognition of the spiritual—of our dependence on the Almighty God.

Those early New England pioneers endured severe hardships. They lived close to starvation, in fearful cold, amid hostile Indians. They had little to be thankful for, yet they devoutly gave thanks. Surely we should be made thoughtful and appreciatively humble as we ponder how much more we have to be thankful for than the Pilgrims.

President Coolidge holds the allies have a right to prevent the restoration of the Hohenloheans and to inflict penalties. Would this be keeping me out of Europe? ## XXII (Continued)

"Perhaps you have heard—Mrs. Ogletorpe, I should think, would be very much disposed to talk about old times—that I was a great belle in New York—belles were fashionable in those days of more marked individuality. I suppose no girl ever had more proposals. Naturally I grew to understand my power over men perfectly. I had that white and regular beauty combined with animation and great sex-magnetism which always convinces men that under the snow volcanic fires are bursting. I was experienced, under the frankest exterior, in all the subtle arts of the coquette. Men to me were a sort of musical instrument from which I could evoke any harmony or cacophony I chose.

"What held the men I played with and rejected was my real gift for good fellowship, my loyalty in friendship, and some natural sweetness of disposition. But such power makes a woman, particularly while young, somewhat heartless and callous, and I was convinced that I had no capacity for love myself; especially as I found all men rather ridiculous. I met Otto Zattany in Paris, where he was attached to the Embassy of the Dual Empire. He was an impetuous worder and very handsome. I did not love him, but I was fascinated. Moreover, I was tired of American men and American life. Diplomacy appealed to my ambition, my love of power and intrigue. He was also a nobleman with great leverage and influence. Not that I made any apologies to myself. I should have taken a lover if I had wanted one, but virtue had been the fashion. And the contract with my husband had been dissolved by mutual consent. The only thing that rebelled was my pride. I hated stepping down from my pedestal!"

Clavering gave a short barking laugh. "Your arrogance is the most magnificent thing about you, and that is saying more than I could otherwise express. I'll forgive myself before you proceed further, if you will permit." He pouted himself out a drink, and returned to his chair with the glass in his hand. "Pray go on."

She had not turned her head and continued to look into the fire. She might have been posing to a sculptor for a bust that would hardly look more like marble when finished.

"I soon discovered that I had not found happiness. Men want. They rarely love. I realized that I had demanded in love far more than passion, and I received nothing else.

"I am not going to tell you how many lovers I have had."

"estates; there could be no suspicion that he was influenced by my fortune. He followed me back to New York, and although my parents were opposed to all foreigners, I had my way; there was the usual wedding in St. Thomas, and we sailed immediately for Europe.

"I hated him at once. I shall not go into the details of that marriage. Fortunately he soon tired of me and returned to his mistresses. To him I was the Galatea that no man could bring to life. But he was very proud of me and keenly aware of my value as the wife of an ambitious diplomatist. He treated me with courtesy, and concerned himself not at all with my private life. He knew my pride, and believed that where he had failed no man could succeed; in short, that I would never consider divorce nor separation, nor even run the risk of less public scandals.

"I was not unhappy. I was rid of him. I had a great position and there was everything to distract my mind. I was not so interested in the inner workings of diplomacy as I was later, but the comedy of jealousy and intrigue in the diplomatic set was amusing from the first. I was very beautiful. I entertained magnificently. I was called the best dressed woman in Paris. I was besieged by men—men who were a godsend more difficult to manage than chivalrous Americans, particularly as I was now married and the natural prey of the hunter. But it was several years before I could think of men without a shudder, little as I permitted them to suspect it. I learned to play the subtle and absorbing game of men and women as it is played to perfection in the older civilizations. It was all that gave vitality to the general game of society. I had no children; my establishment was run by a major domo; it bore little resemblance to a home. It was the brilliant artificial existence of a great lady, young, beautiful, and wealthy, in Europe before nineteen-fourteen.

Of course that phase of life was suspended in Europe during the war. All the women I knew or heard of worked as hard as I did. Whether that terrible interregnum left its indelible seal on them, or whether they have rebounded to the old life, where conditions are less agonizing than in Vienna, I do not know."

"What about Englishmen?" demanded Clavering sarcastically. "I thought they were bad artists but real lovers."

"I know little of Englishmen. Zattany was never appointed to St. James', and although, of course, I met many of them in the services on the continent, and even visited London several times, it must have happened that I was interested in some one else or in a state of profound reaction from love at the time—at least so I infer. It was a long while ago. I remember only the fact."

WHICH IS MORE FOOLISH?

It is an investment, made after thorough investigation and in accord with competent advice, should turn out unfortunately, it is no reason to say "I'd do better to follow my own hunches."

NEARLY every home has a collection of poisons, ranging in size from iodine to hydrochloric acid. Usually these substances are kept in the medicine cabinet along with castor oil and cough syrup, the indiscriminate storing of harmless substances has often resulted in taking poisons by mistake.

Every bottle of poison should be correctly labeled, but even the skull and crossbones will not always prevent mistakes. The safest way is to keep poisons in a separate cabinet—under lock and key if there are children in the house—or stick pins in the cork of bottles to prevent mistakes in the dark.

Always learn the antidote to every poison kept in the house, and in case of poisoning apply it promptly while you are waiting for the doctor and counts and prompt treatment will come. Remember that every sees often prevent death. Most poisons are now supplied by the drug stores with stock labels giving the antidote. If you have bottles in your medicine chest which are improperly labeled, throw them out unless you can positively identify their contents.

Most cases of accidental poisoning have been due to bottles improperly labeled or not labeled at all. An example is the similarity in the color of iodine and arsenic. Keep them separate and keep tragedy out of your home.

STUNNING FROCKS FOR LATE WINTER WEAR GLITTER WITH MOCK GEMS AND STEEL BEADS

EACH week brings new frocks to dazzle the eyes of my lady of fashion. So diversified in design and style are these late offerings that there is no monotony of silhouette or fabric. On display at several of Port Arthur's smart shops are many charming models that beggar description. One colorful dinner gown on display is of lace applique red georgette, beaded in crystal beads in shades of the same vivid hue. The tunic is a shade brighter than the underskirt. A girdle of rhinestones and red and white crystal beads outlines the basque bodice.

Another stunning frock is of black flat crepe, trimmed in box plaited lace ribbon and white crystal buttons. The tunic is circular in cut. A beautiful evening gown is of taffeta color georgette, brocaded in lace red velvet. The frock is beaded in gold and bronze, has a deep flounce and one long trailing sash. A gray lace bodice beaded with steel beads is combined with a skirt of black satin in an unusual dinner frock. The front of the frock has a long loose panel of black, faced with gray lace. Another panel is caught on one shoulder, and falls in graceful folds.

Black is always smart. A sumptuous black velvet dinner gown is smartly combined with cloth of silver and beaded in opaque and crystal beads and brilliants. A rose of cloth is centered with rhinestones. A band of the same metallic cloth, embroidered in beads, trims the skirt. The bottom of the frock is scalloped.

These are women who imagine black "old." They begin to have a "touch of color" on the new black hat, that fashionable woman considers just right the way it is, and that who know would lose its smartness with even a suggestion of color. They urge the woman of thirty-five to wear pink roses on her hat just to show the world that she is still young in spirit, not realizing that pink roses add years to the appearance of a woman on the gray-haired side of thirty-five.

The woman of fashion, however, realizes that black makes for smartness at whatever age—granted, of course, that it is smart, trim black and not the dowdy variety.

Black velvet has become amazingly smart recently, and quite the cleverest way to trim it is with a suspicion of white. Black velvet coats with white fur collars have already become synonymous with smart dressing, and not infrequently the well dressed woman appears at her best in an all-black frock relieved only by the dead white of a single gardenia.

HIS WIFE SCRATCHED;
HE GETS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Lucille O. Bailey was suspicious of her husband, George G. Bailey, and she possessed such a violent temper that she frequently attacked him and bit and scratched which won him a divorce in Judge Shaw's court.

"She deserved me of being out with another woman, something that was absolutely untrue," Bailey declared.

He said she once attacked him and scratched his face and punched him for four blocks on Spring street with the blood running down his cheek until he finally took refuge in his brother-in-law's office.

Color Cut-outs

The Thanksgiving Feast

"Sh! The curtain's going up," whispered some one, and all Billy and Betty Cutout's relatives and Polly Mount's neighbors that crowded the farmhouse to see the play "The First Thanksgiving" drew in excited breath at the old-fashioned setting and the little actors in their stiff Pilgrim costumes behind the footlights.

The play told of the Pilgrims, long winter of famine, their crop prospered and they celebrated a Day of Thanksgiving with a feast of wild turkey. As soon as the curtain fell at the end, Sam Mount shouted, "Find your places at the big table in the dining room," and trooped the whole crowd to the turkey dinner. Mrs. Mount had prepared, Betty and Billy and Polly and Sam ate drumsticks and white meat and dumplings and cranberry jelly and pumpkin pie until their Pilgrim suits nearly popped their seams!

Every boy and girl knew the colors to paint the dishes of the Thanksgiving feast. Don't they make your mouth water?

Mothers— AND THEIR CHILDREN

"You poor, poor dear," said Ruth coming over to me. "We have had terrible woman been saying to you? You are all ill, I never."

"Instead of answering I asked, "What do you think of 'Trumping His Heart,' Ruth?"

"It is a very wonderful picture. Do you think it is Paula Perier's life?"

"I have no right to think about it in any way," she said impatiently. "I get so tired, Leslie, when a woman writes a book or a play or the scenario for a picture, of having everybody say that she has put the experiences of her own life in it—particularly if those experiences have a sexual tinge. I suppose it is because in the old days we deluded ourselves into thinking that women were sexless as far as their thoughts were concerned. What hypocrites we were. We had to say 'Wolf—wolf' the moment a woman was heavy enough to come out and write a story or a play which made the heroine a human being."

"Trumping His Heart" is the most human picture I've seen lately but one has no right to say, unless one has seen Paula Perier better than I—and certainly better than Mrs. Smithson—that it is anything more than an artistic fiction. Did she tell you the story?"

"Yes, and she intimated that everyone in Albany was saying that the hero was Jack."

"Perfectly ridiculous! Of course it is not holding any particular heat."

S. M. U.-BAYLOR BATTLE TODAY

Expect Record Crowd When Undefeated Elevens Meet

DALLAS, Nov. 29.—Overcast skies and a heavy field were the prospects for this afternoon's grid battle between Southern Methodist University and Baylor here, the first time in Dallas' football history that two undefeated eleven-man teams ever met on Thanksgiving day with a conference title at stake.

Weather conditions were claimed to favor the heavier Baylor Bears.

A record attendance was expected when the whistle sounded at 2:30.

Kansas-Missouri Turkey Day game is the classic of the Missouri Valley Conference, but this year it is to be important than usual.

For the last five years the demand for flowers has increased on an average of 20 per cent, annually, he said.

St. Louis dealers in the floral business said yesterday that total sales for Thanksgiving last year had total sales of $7,500,000 in flowers, he said. This year the total will be above $8,000,000 he estimated.

CROWD SEE AIR CIRCUS AT LUFKIN

LUFKIN, Texas, Nov. 29.—Thousands of people witnessed the air stunt put on here by Charles W. Nease, dirigible aviator, and his assistants.

Four live Thanksgiving turkeys, released at an altitude of 500 feet and lower. Following this O. D. Dunn made a parachute drop from a height of 2,000 feet.

Marquette With 17
Wins Faces Battle
Today With Vermont

By United News.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 29.—On the eve of the first intersection football game ever held in this state, both the Marquette and Vermont University elevens were confident of victory in the Turkey Day contest.

Cochrane Keenly and his squad of twenty-one Vermont huskies headed Wednesday noon. He reported his team would have its full strength against the Hilltoppers.

Beginning with the Wabash College game in 1921 which Marquette won 7 to 0, the Hilltoppers have not lost a contest in seventeen starts. During that time they have run up a total of 362 points against 15 for their opponents.

SARAZEN TO TRY LUCK WITH MIXED FOURSOME

By United News.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Well, it's all right.

Pauline Garon, wife of her six-year-old son, admitted Wednesday that she would soon become a widow on her husband's side. She is estranged from Gene Sarazen, holder of the American professional golfers' trophy for the second successive year. "But it isn't announced yet," she said. "For anything more about it, you'll better ask Gene." Miss Garon is a movie actress.

NOTRE DAME MEETS ST. LOUIS U. TODAY

United News.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 29.—The great team from Notre Dame, which will face for years as the pride of the Middle West, in virtue of its defeat of the Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Carnegie Tech, will close its season here Thanksgiving afternoon against St. Louis University.

CALIFORNIA FILMS TO FIGHT CANCER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—War

cancer will be waged in California through motion pictures this year. An intensive campaign covering the week of December 9 to 13, it was announced today by Dr. Alphonse P. Kalmer, local representative of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, which has its headquarters in New York.

Dr. Kilmer is now arranging with photoplay theaters for a showing of a film entitled, "The Reward of Courage," consisting of two reels.

Nothing of a gruesome nature is incorporated in the film, he says, as it tells an interesting story of a cancer clinic, pointing out by inference how one may safeguard himself from the dread disease.

KILLERS THREE BEARS IN THREE MINUTES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Frank Ackerman of this city claims to be the bear hunting "bear" for the killing of three large bears in three minutes.

Ackerman was only hunting deer miles from here, when a bear suddenly emerged from a thicket. He fired and the beast fell dead. A second bear instantly appeared from the thicket, and he became dead bear No. 2, ten feet from his brother.

Ackerman walked forward to inspect them, and the third bear burst forth. "Boom!" went bear No. 3 alone. Ackerman brought down a large buck deer on his way home to get help—then called it a day.

STATES CANNOT TAX U. S. WAR PROPERTY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The supreme court of the United States has declared that property held by the United States or official agents of the government for war production purposes was not subject to state taxation.

'WRITING 'EM' IN '22 SOFT FOR DOCTORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Prohibition in 1922 was profitable to physicians in the United States. 27 states physicians received approximately $30,000,000 for writing prescriptions. Those states were California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Gin and Jazz Making Girls Unfit, Says Matron

LONDON, Nov. 29.—This autumn is a total loss as far as Londoners are concerned.

The newspapers are complaining at the amount of rain, and the weather prophets are making gloomy forecasts, but it is merely a matter of habit. For the first time within the recollection of ordinary observers, London is saying "I'm a failure," and would not disgrace the average temperamental American city.

But though no one has the courage to admit it, nearly every Londoner feels the present condition a disgrace. London likes its weather straight and usually gets it that way. This year summer has hung on until it threatens entirely to bust up the program.

True, there is rain perhaps twice a day. But it is warm, almost spring-like, and in the evening when the real Londoner expects to wake in his bed, he finds it is still dark outside. And usually gets it that way. The year summer has hung on until it threatens entirely to bust up the program.

There is still hope. This is the month of fog, and a few days of cool weather will ease the lighting up of millions of coal fires that form the base of the old "London party fire" without which no summer is complete.

If the fog comes everything will be all right. The Londoner will be two hours late for work. Lessons or train cannot run, or will trail him home marooned in a bus in some or known part of town, or lost two blocks from home. He will curse the fog and London and take something to wash the soot down.

If the present weather lasts, it may never cease, lesson school, the master; but the whole season will be spoiled; and in these circles no given to hating the "missus" or for herself she can still suffer.

JOB FOR JOHN AND SIS IS FIXED IN ADVANCE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Choosing a vocation for a child need no longer be so much a matter of chance, it has been established at the psychological clinic of the University of Pennsylvania.

The intent of the clinic is to determine what fitness an individual has for some general line of occupation. This is found through the application of a number of tests which enable the investigators to grade intelligence.

It is possible through these tests, according to physicians in charge of the clinic, to discover that some children will never be able to go to high school and that others possess an ability to proceed with their education.

The same tests, it is pointed out, may be applied to determine the proper vocation for children.

100% Pure Georgia Ribbon Cane Syrup

HOLLYWOOD MOURNS FOR ITS CANINE PETS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 29.—Hollywood residents have reported the deaths of twenty pet dogs, who got loose out of doghouses on the wings of strychnine, ground glass and arsenic within fifteen days.

"Judy," a German police dog, owned by James McKay, was found by her master in convulsions that indicated strychnine poisoning, and "Rex," belonging to Mrs. H. P. Jenkins, across the road from the McKey's, was hurried to a veterinarian who could not save her life.

Hollywood dog owners have banded together and offered a reward for the capture of the poisoner. Dan Mason, picture actor, who owns valuable collie, "Jess," announced he would muzzle his pet to prevent her from eating anything she might find.

"Judy" was a pet of a Hollywood picture studio. The list of dead dogs reported to Hollywood police include three German shepherds, four Scotties, six terriers and a valuable cocker spaniel.

We Leave all the Sugar in Katrena

The South's Most Healthful Food

Let the children have Katrena! And plenty of it. For Katrena is pure.

It's the South's finest syrup; made true to all Southern tradition--sweetest juices from the choicest of Georgia's ribbon cane cooked in good old-fashioned open kettles.

Nothing added--not a thing taken away. Just that pure, wholesome, delicious ribbon cane syrup--for which the South is praised.

Call your grocer. It costs no more to keep Katrena on your table.

And Again Comes Thanksgiving

When the entire American world gives thanks to the wonderful strides that American industry, and the people as a whole have made since the founding of the grand old United States.

We as an organization of Port Arthur, one of the south's most prosperous cities, are thankful that we in the last year, have moved into one of South Texas' most modern department stores, and developed a store service and store policy that is seldom found in cities of this size and sometimes not found in cities much larger.

We are more than thankful that we have the confidence of so many housewives of Port Arthur and are indeed grateful for their friendship. We wish to assure our friends that in the years that follow—as in the years past—we will always endeavor to better our store, as to service, merchandise, economical prices and courtesy; when ever it is possible to do so.
